Founded in 2015 by international filmmaker Chiara Tilesi, We Do It Together has collaborated with the United Nations, NASDAQ, the World Economic Forum, and governments worldwide. Through films, educational initiatives, and social-impact campaigns, the organization continues to challenge gender inequality and empower women’s storytelling. Its feature film Tell It Like a Woman—Oscar®-nominated in 2023 and screened at the UN General Assembly—underscores the organization’s global influence.

Honoring Women Leading Global Change

The gala celebrated seven extraordinary women whose achievements inspire worldwide change:

- Sharon Stone received the Iconic Excellence Award for her humanitarian efforts in HIV/AIDS awareness, women's rights, and global justice.
- Diane Warren, 16-time Academy Award-nominated songwriter, was honored for her contributions to music and storytelling.
- Patricia Riggen, acclaimed director, was recognized for championing authentic narratives on the global screen.
- Dr. Sharona Nazarian, Beverly Hills Mayor, was celebrated for her community leadership.
- Dr. Kim Carter, CNN Hero, was honored for her work supporting women affected by trauma and homelessness.
- Bianca Balti, model and advocate, was recognized for her voice in empowerment and representation.
- Dr. Rita Ali, founder of We 2 Matter, was acknowledged for her advocacy and global impact supporting women and marginalized communities.

A Night Rooted in Purpose

Master of Ceremonies Giselle Fernandez guided guests through an inspiring evening of awards, presentations, and recognition. The night included a reception and red carpet, followed by the awards ceremony and a seated dinner, concluding with an exclusive private tour of the museum. Spiritual leaders Oliver Niño and Mandy Morris, founders of the Authentic Living Foundation, also joined the gala as supporters of We Do It Together.

In her remarks, founder Chiara Tilesi reflected on the organization's journey:

“For the last 10 years, We Do It Together has worked to change the cultural roots of gender inequality through film, education, and social-impact campaigns. While violence and disparity continue to rise worldwide, our commitment is stronger than ever. Tonight we honor extraordinary women who inspire real change.”

A Night Supported by Hollywood and Industry Leaders

The celebration drew several familiar faces from the entertainment and real estate worlds. Mary Bonnet and Romain Bonnet, along with Sandra Vergara of Selling Sunset, attended together, joined by Jason Oppenheim, President of The Oppenheim Group.

Also present were Derek Warburton, founder and CEO of Gurus Magazine, and Dr. Michael K. Newman, award-winning board-certified plastic surgeon, reflecting the broad support the organization has received over its ten-year impact.

Spotlighting the Global I AM Campaign and Recent Initiatives

The gala featured the U.S. premiere of the “I AM” campaign, an international initiative that amplifies women’s voices through self-portrait storytelling. The campaign includes prominent figures such as Helen Mirren and Marisa Tomei, inspiring attendees with messages of identity, resilience, and empowerment.

The gala also highlighted We Do It Together’s recent initiatives, reflecting a global movement to amplify women’s voices. Collaborations with international institutions such as UN Women and governments of the USA, Italy, UK, Japan, Chile, and Argentina underscore the organization’s reach and influence. Through films, campaigns, and events, We Do It Together provides platforms for women to express themselves, showcase talent, and reshape culture.

A Night at the Mr. Brainwash Art Museum

The event took place at the Mr. Brainwash Art Museum, created by renowned street artist and filmmaker Thierry Guetta (Mr. Brainwash). Known for its bold fusion of pop culture, graffiti, and contemporary art, the museum offered a fitting backdrop to celebrate a decade of women's empowerment. In honor of the milestone, Mr. Brainwash donated a special art piece titled "Pop Wall", a silkscreen and mixed media on canvas with a splashed frame, to be auctioned in support of We Do It Together.

A Celebration of Legacy—and a Launch Into the Future

The gala not only reflected on a decade of progress but also set the stage for the next chapter. With new films, educational programs, and global campaigns planned for 2026 and beyond, We Do It Together reaffirmed its mission to place women at the center of media narratives.

The night concluded with cheers, emotional embraces, and a renewed commitment to creating a world where women's stories are not only heard but continue to drive lasting cultural impact.
